Excerpt from Spalding s Athletic Library, Vol. 7: Official Collegiate Basket Ball Guide for 1907-8 In completing her schedule with only a single defeat Yale equalled the record of the University of Pennsylvania quint which, a year ago, won championship honors by losing only a solitary game to Columbia during the intercollegiate season. In two other respects it was a notable year for the champion Yale team. The club possessed Gilmore Kinney, who won the record of being the leading scorer of the league for the year, and it inaugurated for the first time the system of professional coaching in basket ball for Yale. Kinney s record was the excellent one of 91 points for nine games, an average of more than 10 points per contest. In 1906 Flint, the fine Pennsylvania forward, led the league with a record of 75 points for ten games. Yale not only won the most games, but scored the most points for the season, her team perfecting a record of 225 points to 197 for the University of Pennsylvania, who was second. The league made no membership change for the season, but presented the same ideal circuit that represented it the previous year, including Yale, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Harvard, Princeton and Cornell.
